

FAASTeam presents:

Secrets of Navigating Through SoCal Airspace

Are there places you would like to fly in the LA area but are intimidated by all the class C and B airspace, traffic, and communication procedures?

Well, it is easy, with a little bit of planning. Join us for a discussion on navigating through the airspace from Van Nuys to San Diego. We will review the Los Angeles Special Air Traffic Rules Area, including the VFR Corridor and other routes through the class B airspace. We will also discuss the best route to certain airports, weather patterns to watch for, and communicating with So Cal approach and departure. If you are an experienced "SoCal" pilot, we hope that you will also attend and contribute to our discussion. The goal of this meeting is to inform and prepare pilots to be confident and competent to fly in some of the busiest airspaces in the world, with safety of flight as the top priority.

Directions: From Hwy 99, Merle Haggard Drive East to Airport Drive. South on Airport Drive to Skyway Drive.
